

High Cholesterol Statins

Consumer Reports Health Best Buy Drugs is a resource to help you find the best prescription drugs for common conditions. Best Buy Drugs are chosen based on how well they work, side effects and cost. Statins are cholesterol-lowering medicines. The information below is for people who need statins to lower their LDL, or “bad” cholesterol.

Ask Your Doctor About Generics

- Generic drugs are less expensive versions of brand-name drugs. They cost less but have the same active ingredients.
- About half of all brand-name prescription drugs have a generic version.
- If your doctor prescribes a brand-name drug, ask if there’s a generic version of that drug or a similar drug.
- Discuss your options before you leave the doctor’s office.
- Unless your doctor requests brand only, your pharmacist can give you the generic version.
- Generic drugs sometimes look or taste different than brand-name drugs. However, they work the same way.

Get the full Best Buy Drugs report for free at www.ConsumerReportsHealth.org/BestBuyDrugs

Best Buy Statins

These Best Buy Drugs are proven effective and can save you money. Talk to your doctor about which one is best for you.

If you need to lower your LDL less than 30%:

Lovastatin (generic for Mevacor) or

Pravastatin (generic for Pravachol)

If you need to lower your LDL more than 30% or have heart disease or diabetes:

Simvastatin— 20 or 40 mg

(generic for Zocor)

If you have high LDL and you’ve had a heart attack or have acute coronary syndrome:

Lipitor—40 or 80 mg

(only sold as brand-name)

Tips on Statins

- Statins aren’t all the same. Some may lower your cholesterol better than others.
- Make healthy lifestyle changes to help lower your LDL (bad cholesterol). This is a good idea whether or not you take statins.
- Call your doctor right away if you have muscle aches or pains while taking statins.
- Talk to your doctor if you want to split statin pills.

Appeal

When Medicare Won't Cover a Drug You Need

Getting Medicare right

You can appeal if you have Medicare drug coverage (called Part D) and it won't pay for a drug your doctor prescribed. An appeal is a formal request asking your drug plan to cover your drug. You can appeal when your drug plan:

- ◆ doesn't have the drug you need on its list of covered drugs.
- ◆ will only cover a limited amount of the drug you need.
- ◆ is making you get approval before you can get the drug.
- ◆ wants you to try other drugs first.

Before you appeal, ask your doctor if you can take a drug the plan covers that would be just as effective. If you do appeal, the good news is that many people win their appeal in the first few stages and get the drug their doctor prescribed.

Follow these steps if you appeal. The steps are the same for all types of Medicare drug coverage.

1. An exception request is first. If your pharmacist says your plan won't pay for a drug, ask your drug plan to make an exception. Ask your doctor to write to the plan and say the drug is medically necessary. Call the plan to find out where to send the request. The phone number is on your drug insurance card. The plan will then give you what's called a coverage determination.
2. Appealing (getting a redetermination) is next. If the plan denies your exception request, your doctor should write to the plan and ask for a redetermination. The doctor should respond to the reasons given in the denial.
3. The Independent Review Entity is the third step. If the plan denies the redetermination, you and your doctor then write to MAXIMUS Federal Services. MAXIMUS is the Independent Review Entity. It isn't connected to your plan. It makes an independent decision.
4. If you need to continue: The next step is to go to an administrative law judge. After that, you can get a Medicare Appeals Council hearing and judicial review.

TIP: Your State Health Insurance Assistance Program (SHIP) can advise you about appeals. Call Medicare at 800-633-4227 to get the phone number for your SHIP.

Other Ways to Get Your Drugs

If your drug plan won't cover the drugs you need, consider changing plans. Keep in mind most people can only change plans at certain times of year.

Many states have programs that help pay for drugs. Call Medicare (800-633-4227) for details. Drug companies can also give discounts. Go to rxassist.org or needy meds.org to find these discounts.

If Your Insurance Isn't From Medicare

If you have a drug plan that isn't from Medicare (like from a job), the appeals process might be different. Contact your state insurance department for information. No matter what type of plan you have, you should have your doctor tell the plan why you need the drug.

Helpful web sites

Check out these sites for information and tips.

ConsumerReports
Health.org/BestBuyDrugs

MedicareInteractive.org

Medicare.gov

MedicareAppeal.com